Committee on Government Efficiency Launches Portal for Public Input

Topeka (January 31, 2025) – The Committee on Government Efficiency has launched a Government Efficiency Portal on the Kansas Legislature’s website to receive input from the public. Citizens may also opt to simply send e-mails to kansascope@senate.ks.gov.

The portal includes a simple form that can be accessed at <https://kslegislature.gov/li/kansascope/>.

“One of the reasons we created COGE was to receive ideas directly from Kansans on how government can operate more efficiently and effectively. This easy-to-access portal allows the public to submit ideas that the committee can then study and potentially turn into legislation,” said Senate President Ty Masterson.

Senator Renee Erickson, chair of COGE, echoed that and encouraged Kansans to send in their ideas.

“Our committee is eager to receive ideas from the people on how to ensure government is truly on their side. The best ideas often come from citizens, not politicians, so I invite the public to submit their suggestions and not be shy! We look forward to reviewing that input in the weeks ahead,” she said.
