Woman cited for profane tirade at kids in her care in 2024 KDHE complaint probe

BY DANE HICKS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT—A Garnett daycare provider charged with severely injuring a child in her care was cited for “prohibited punishment” by state authorities, after a profanity-laced tirade aimed at children in her care a year before the alleged abuse incident.

Tregon Guernsey, 28 of Garnett, is in the Anderson County Jail on a $500,000 bond awaiting a Sept. 2 first appearance in court on felony child abuse charges and allegations she lied to investigators probing the incident.

Kansas Department of Health & Environment daycare inspection records show Guernsey’s license was suspended in January of this year as the investigation of the November 2025 incident proceeded. Kansas Bureau of Investigation agents allege Guernsey severely injured a five month-old infant on November 19, 2025, and also struck a four year-old child in July of 2024. She was arrested August 13 and assigned court-appointed counsel in a hearing Monday.

Records show Guernsey’s daycare operation had no non-compliance issues in a March 2025 compliance inspection, but was cited after a complaint for “prohibited punishment” in October 2024 when records say she yelled “Get out of here, go, I’m fing pissed” and other verbal abuse toward children in her

One good turn tolls a stuck bell

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 8-20-2026 / BARB HICKS & JANIE FIELDS

No one remembers how long ago the lower bell in the belltower at St. Johns Church in Greeley got stuck upside down, but the fragile condition of the church’s clay tile roof made it impossible to climb up and fix. Workers with a big boom truck from Black&McDonald in Kansas City, working on a nearby project off U.S. 169, jumped in with a good deed to assist and rectify the problem Tuesday. Photos above include crew members Cole Brockelman, Matt Gray, Wyatt Stuart and James Tyson. See story on Page 7.

Blackberry power line puts Anderson County in the hunt for data center benefits

BY DANE HICKS

THE KANSAS INFORMER

COLONY – A newly completed high-voltage transmission line cutting across southern Anderson County may have given Anderson County something increasingly valuable in the competition for large-scale economic development: direct proximity to the kind of electrical backbone needed to serve a major data center.

The Wolf Creek-Blackberry project is a 345-kilovolt transmission line stretching about 92 miles from the Wolf Creek nuclear plant substation in Coffey County to the Blackberry substation in Jasper County, Mo. The route crosses Anderson County and was energized in 2025.

For Anderson County, the line may be more than another set of transmission poles across the countryside.

Modern hyperscale data centers, particularly those supporting artificial intelligence, can require hundreds of megawatts of electricity. A major transmission corridor through a largely rural area therefore could make nearby property considerably more attractive to developers.

Blackberry power line

Southwest Power Pool, which oversees the regional electric grid, said the Wolf Creek-Blackberry project was designed to strengthen reliability, relieve congestion and “increase available transfer capability” in the region.

NextEra Energy Transmission Southwest, which built and owns the line, says the project will “reduce congestion and provide market efficiencies and benefits to ratepayers,” estimating more than $550 million in customer savings over its approximately 40-year life.

That additional capacity is the kind of infrastructure data-center developers seek. It does not mean a data center could simply connect to the line. A project would still require engineering and reliability studies by SPP and utilities, along with a new switching station or substation, transformers and possibly additional transmission or generation improvements.

But having a 345-kV bulk-transmission corridor already crossing the county potentially answers one of the first questions developers ask: how to get an enormous supply of electricity to the site.

Nearby Osawatomie provides an example of the potential economic

Dauids dodges question about abolishing ICE

BY DANE HICKS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Kansas Congresswoman Sharice Dauids

this week dodged a question about her support or opposition for a DNC resolution to abolish ICE and a separate resolution to restrict it, harkening to a 2018 flip-flop in which she first said she favored abolishing or defunding the immigration enforcement agency.

The Democratic National Committee adopted both the competing resolutions at its summer meeting in Austin Texas, splitting on details but maintaining the hard-line anti-immigration enforcement stance embraced by most of the party. Frontier District lumps tax on locals Trump tried to cut

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OTTAWA – Frontier District Extension officials are foisting nearly $192,000 in new property taxes onto local property owners for a program President Donald Trump and Congress sought to remove from federal spending, instead keeping two fulltime nutrition-education positions after the federal SNAP-Ed funding was eliminated.

SNAP-Ed was part of the former Food Stamp program that provides food to the low-income.

The One Big Beautiful Bill Act, signed by Trump July 4, 2025, ended mandatory federal SNAP-Ed funding after fiscal 2025. SNAP-Ed provided nutrition instruction and healthy-living education for low-income residents and had been administered locally through K-State Extension. Frontier District Director Rebecca McFarland said the program had operat-

Less than 1 in 3 Kansas voters cast ballots Aug. 4

BY DANE HICKS

THE KANSAS INFORMER

TOPEKA – Fewer than one in three registered Kansas voters cast a vote Aug. 4 on a constitutional amendment that would have fundamentally changed the way justices are selected for the Kansas Supreme Court. And even with Republican backing, the numbers suggest GOP voters weren’t all warm to the idea. Unofficial statewide results from the Kansas Secretary of State show 623,194 votes were cast on the amendment — 382,395, or 61 percent, against it and 240,799, or 39 percent, in favor. Against a statewide registration of roughly 2 million voters, that means only about 31 percent of registered Kansans actually cast a vote on the proposed constitutional change.

But that’s not the only political arithmetic that’s germane to the 2026 primary.

Kansas has nearly twice as many registered Republicans as Democrats. The Secretary of State’s

ANDERSON COUNTY COMMISSION AUGUST 10, 2026

Chairman Leslie McGhee called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 AM on August 10, 2026, at the Anderson County Commission Room. Attendance: Leslie McGhee, Present: Anthony Merzman, Present: Michael E. Blaukus, Present. The Pledge of Allegiance was recited. Minutes from the previous meeting were approved as amended.

Public Comment

Pat Rockers, Greeley, met with the commission. He inquired about the KDOT US-169 project that will be going through the City of Greeley scheduled for 2027/2028. He contacted an engineer at KDOT to see what needed to be done to include turning lanes in that stretch. The engineer stated a statement from the County Commissioners and City of Greeley councilmembers requesting the addition would be helpful for consideration. He gave the commission the address to mail the letter. A letter was drafted and signed during the meeting.

Road and Bridge

Ethan Lickteig, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. Discussion was held on housing graders at fire barns or unused school property. This will allow the county to have control over the security and equipment. Some graders are currently parked at the employee's homes and would have to be relocated if the employee leaves Anderson County. Moving the graders to a centralized location with either district that is owned by either the county or school district is more efficient and safer. Ethan will do some checking with the school district on if this is a possibility.

Copy Products Inc

Ethan Martin, CPI, met with the commission. He inquired about the county hiring a full-time IT person. He believes CPI can contract with the county and save money. The Commissioners want some one on staff to also help minimize technology costs that overlap in departments and are available immediately when needed. Ethan will return in a few weeks to give a proposal.

Meeting adjourned at 12:00 PM due to no further business.

June registration figures showed about 891,000 Republicans, 496,000 Democrats and 596,000 unaffiliated voters among just over 2 million registered Kansans.

Republicans and Democrats had numerous candidates and contested races pulling them to the polls Aug. 4. Unaffiliated voters, meanwhile, could vote on the constitutional amendment without joining a party, but otherwise had little reason to participate in a partisan primary unless they chose to affiliate at the polls. The Secretary of State specifically reminded voters before the election that unaffiliated Kansans could vote on the amendment regardless of party affiliation.

Critics argued from the beginning that putting the proposal on a primary ballot would produce a smaller and potentially more Republican electorate. Democratic Rep. Lindsay Vaughn of Overland Park pointed out the contradiction during the 2025 debate.

"They think the voters should have a bigger role in the selection process," Vaughn told the Kansas News Service. "To that, I find it ironic that we have

Chapter Y hosts K-9

Fifteen members of Chapter Y PEO met 7:00 p.m. at the Garnett Public Library on Monday, August 17, 2026. Denise Weber served as hostess and Deanna Wolken served as co-hostess.

Deputy Jones of the Anderson County Sheriff's Office presented an excellent program outdoors with his K-9 dog named, appropriately, "Sheriff." Deputy Jones and Sheriff demonstrated law enforcement tactics.

Thanks to support from the community, this 5 year old, highly trained Belgian Malinois has been on duty with the Anderson County Sheriff's Office for approximately 18 months. He is cross-trained for narcotics detection and escaping perpetrators pursuit as well as other paths.

Colony Christian Church - "Living out Christ's love"

Lexy Langworthy led worship singing "Death was Arrested," "In Christ Alone," "Christ be Magnified" and "Leaning on His Everlasting Arms." Lexy was accompanied by Jake Riebel and Speed Elasser.

Larry Wittmer gave the communion meditation... Redemption, forgiveness, propitiation, justification

Sheriff is a Belgian Malinois. Early try-outs for puppies to be trained to work in law enforcement involve a trainer throwing a ball and watching which dog chases after the it. These dogs are prepared to think of their work as a game and are rewarded with the opportunity to play with a toy rather than receive a food treat.

Following the business meeting, a brief pinning ceremony was conducted by President Pam Covault to present the membership pin to Carla Ewert.

The next meeting of Chapter Y will be a social gathering on September 21, at the Garnett Depot. Hostesses for the meeting will be the Program Committee. Booklets for the new chapter year will be distributed at that time.

and reconciliation were some of the things Christ gave us but the suffering and crucifixion was His greatest act of love.

Pastor Chase Riebel spoke from Romans 13:1-4. Don't indulge evil desires. Instead we should live our lives showing love to others so they can see our love for Jesus. Love fulfills the requirements of the law.

MacIntosh tops Senior Center pitch

On Thursday August 13 we were 17 strong for 10 games of 13-point pitch. The top honor went to Doug MacIntosh winning seven of 10 games. Other winners were Ron Walter winning the 50/50, Kyle Trendel with the most perfect hands of 13 with five and Jessie Duncan won the least number of games.

Come join us on Thursday evening promptly at six o'clock at the Senior Center for 10 games of 13-point pitch. It's really a fun evening of laughs, stories and snacks. Everyone is welcome whether you are an expert card player or just a beginner. Always room for one more.

ed in Franklin and Osage counties since 1995 and employed two nutrition educators serving the three-county district. When federal support ended, the district governing board elected to continue the program with local money. The district also included Anderson County.

That decision is reflected in Frontier's proposed 2027 budget published in today's Review. Salaries and wages jump from $900,000 to $1.05 million, while employer contributions increase from $250,000 to $300,000. Travel rises from $35,000 to $50,000 and supplies and postage increase from $18,000 to $23,000.

Overall expenditures climb from $1,439 million to $1,804 million, a 25.3% increase. The budget requires $1.13 million in property taxes for 2027, up 20% from this year, while the district enters the year with a smaller cash balance of $366,068.

The tax increase comes with an assessed property valuation increase of 29% since 2025.

McFarland said the higher salary, benefit, travel and educational-supply costs were necessary to retain the two nutrition educators.

The federal law did not eliminate SNAP food benefits, but separately eliminated future federal funding for SNAP-Ed while also making other reductions and eligibility changes to the broader SNAP program.

A never ending triumph!

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

In 1 Corinthians the Apostle Paul says, "I declare to you, brothers that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable." This means we can only inherit the Kingdom of God in one of two ways. Either by our death or by the return of Jesus, commonly referred to as the rapture. The Bible is replete with records of deaths. The first book, Genesis ends with the death of Joseph and the first real estate purchase was by Abraham to purchase a burial plot for his wife Sarah.

So what is the Biblical theology behind death? In 1 Corinthians 15:22 we read, "For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made alive." If we need more clarification we can look to Romans 8:12. "Therefore just as sin entered the world through one man, and death through sin, and in this way death came to all men because all have sinned." We inherited the sin virus from Adam, no one escapes the disease. Our bodies are not made to live forever. However in 1 Corinthians 15:51 we read God's plan for us. "Listen, I tell you a mystery: We will not all sleep, but we will all be changed - in a flash, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." So what did Jesus have to say concerning death? In John 5:24 Jesus says, "I tell you the truth, whoever hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life and will not be condemned, he has crossed over from death to life."

Everyone dies. Adam's failure to comply with God's command not to eat the fruit condemned us all. At the foot of the cross the playing field is level there is no privilege for anyone. It is there that death appears to have won, however the resurrection swallowed death up. Death, though we never look at it that way, is not an unending tragedy but a never ending triumph. For us to know that we have passed from death to life during our time here on earth is part of that never ending triumph and clearly points to the beginning of our new life.

press inquiries directly and never attends unsolicited public appearances, refused to answer whether she supports or refutes either resolution. She said instead "we need order at the border and a lawful, effective immigration system rooted in accountability, transparency, and respect for people's rights."

That response differs broadly, however, from a July 21, 2019, Millennial Politics podcast appearance in which the interviewer asked Davids directly, "And just to clarify, you do support abolishing ICE?"

Davids responded: "I do, I would, I would" and then added that defunding ICE was "essentially the same thing."

It took only a month before Davids herself personally disavowed the original comments and said she did not favor abolishing ICE. Since that time, other Democrats have been far more direct in their disdain for ICE and for local law officers who assist them. Some 275 assaults were reported against ICE officers in 2025, up from 19 in 2024; the Department of Homeland Security also reported 66 vehicular attacks compared to two the previous year. Data for 2026 was not yet available.

Neither those assaults on law enforcement nor the mission to stop the insurgency of illicit drugs into the United States have dissuaded some of Davids Democrat colleagues however, particularly those from solid Blue districts that don't have as high Republican registration as Davids' 3rd District.

Rep. Shri Thanedar, Michigan—introduced H.R. 7123, the "Abolish ICE Act," on Jan. 15. The bill would abolish ICE 90 days after enactment. Interestingly, Congress.gov currently lists no cosponsors, so Thanedar remains the only sponsor of that particular full-abolition bill.

Rep. Ayanna Pressley, Massachusetts — said in January, "There is no reforming this lawless agency... We must abolish ICE." She has repeated the position several times since.

Rep. Ilhan Omar, Minnesota — delivered a House-floor speech Feb. 4 explicitly calling to "abolish ICE."

Rep. Summer Lee, Pennsylvania — repeatedly has called for abolition; her congressional office said Feb. 3 that she was reiterating her call to "abolish ICE."

Rep. Delia Ramirez, Illinois — has been particularly explicit, saying Democrats should build a system in which "we abolish ICE and end detention, and we dismantle DHS."

Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, New York — in May posted a video under the title "We need to Abolish ICE," saying precisely that.

Rep. Rashida Tlaib, Michigan — publicly declared in January: "Abolish ICE now." Rep. Robert Garcia, California — said after the January Minneapolis shooting: "ICE must be abolished. Democrats in the Senate cannot fund DHS."

Rep. Yassamin Ansari, Arizona — told the House that Congress "must abolish ICE," while promoting her Drain ICE Act to cut its funding.

Rep. Robin Kelly, Illinois — has used the slightly different formulation "We need to dismantle ICE."

Davids' handlers did not return follow up questions from the Informer on Tuesday.

Project Catalyst, proposed by Aljoe Development and MDH Partners, is envisioned as a multi-phase data-center campus on about 283 acres near Oswatomie. Current plans call for as many as seven buildings totaling roughly 3.3 million square feet, requiring more than 500 megawatts of electricity and representing an investment that could approach $10 billion.

Projected tax benefits are substantial.

A preliminary fiscal analysis released by the developer and City of Oswatomie estimates the project, at full build-out, could produce more than $30 million annually for the City of Oswatomie, including property taxes, franchise fees and other revenue.

The analysis projects another $10 million or more annually for Miami County and more than $10 million per year for USD 367, the Oswatomie school district. Those are projections rather than guaranteed revenues, and depend upon completion of the project and final tax agreements.

Still, the potential impact illustrates why rural communities are pursuing data centers.

City Manager Bret Glendening has said nearly 90 percent of Oswatomie's property-tax revenue currently comes from residential property. In discussing Project Catalyst, Glendening said city leaders "want to see taxes reduced significantly" once the new revenues begin arriving.

The developer's fiscal analysis estimates the project could produce roughly $15 in local tax revenue for every $1 in municipal services it requires.

Unlike a major housing development, which adds residents, schoolchildren, traffic and service demands, a data center can place billions of dollars in commercial investment on the tax rolls while requiring comparatively few municipal services.

Protecting electric customers Critics nationally have questioned whether ordinary electric customers will be forced to pay for the power plants, substations and transmission infrastructure needed for huge data centers.

Kansas regulators have attempted to address that concern.

The Kansas Corporation Commission approved Every's Large Load Power service rate in November 2025 for new customers requiring 75 megawatts or more. Large customers generally must make long-term commitments and pay minimum monthly bills based upon 90 percent of their contracted demand even if they use less electricity.

The KCC said infrastructure constructed solely to serve a large-load customer is to be assigned directly to that customer rather than existing ratepayers.

Project Catalyst's developers likewise say transmission, substations and new generation required specifically for the Oswatomie campus would be paid for by the project.

Kansas also provides qualifying data centers with a 20-year sales-tax exemption on eligible construction and equipment if they meet minimum investment and employment requirements. Electricity itself is not exempted, and Kansas law prohibits utilities from giving qualifying data centers discounted economic-development electric rates.

Water concerns depend on design

Water consumption is another common criticism of data centers, particularly those using evaporative cooling.

Project Catalyst's developers, however, say the Oswatomie campus will use a fully air-cooled, closed-loop system. After the system is initially filled, they say ordinary water use would largely be limited to restrooms and similar building needs.

A similarly designed Anderson County facility therefore might not require the enormous water supplies associated with older data-center designs.

An opportunity worth investigating

None of this proves that southern Anderson County could support a 500-megawatt data center.

The Wolf Creek-Blackberry line's actual capacity for additional load would have to be determined by SPP and utilities. Its connection to Wolf Creek also creates strict nuclear-plant reliability requirements.

But the infrastructure exists.

Anderson County could request a preliminary large-load feasibility review identifying where a new 345-kV delivery point might be established, how much load could be served and what improvements a developer would have to finance.

If several hundred megawatts could be accommodated at the right location, Anderson County would have something highly marketable: available rural land alongside one of eastern Kansas' newest high-capacity transmission corridors.

An album was worth 20 cheeseburgers

Some things about 1978 are worth missing. Like hairstyles. And records.

But there was something satisfying about walking into a record store, flipping through the bins, studying the album covers and laying down your money for something you'd waited weeks to buy. And knowing only two songs on the thing were going to be good, and the others were going to be...well...not.

Still, music felt more meaningful when you had to buy it one album at a time. But nostalgia has a funny way of remembering the experience while forgetting the price.

By 1978, the suggested retail price of many new LPs was around $7.98, with some moving to $8.98, although discount stores often sold them for $5 or $6. Contemporary record-industry reports show $7.98 list albums commonly discounted below $6.

That doesn't sound like much today. But a gallon of gasoline averaged roughly 65 to 70 cents that year. A McDonald's cheeseburger was about 40 cents. That $7.98 album cost the equivalent of about 12 gallons of gasoline — or nearly 20 cheeseburgers.

Think about that the next time someone complains about Spotify.

Spotify Premium now costs $12.99 per month. For that, instead of getting one record with perhaps 10 songs, you get access to an enormous catalog containing virtually every artist most of us ever listened to, plus artists we never knew existed. And new ones every day. Plus books and podcasts, heck...almost everything.

For roughly the price of one fast-food lunch today, you can spend an entire month listening to Elvis, Sinatra, the Beatles, Fleetwood Mac, Waylon Jennings, Linda Ronstadt, the Eagles, Boston, the Rolling Stones, Willie Nelson or practically anybody else who strikes your fancy. Even "bilateral music" — that's a tease — look it up.

All of it, and you don't have to drive to the record store. Cause who has time for that type of leisure these days.

You don't have to hope the album is in stock. You don't have to tape it onto a cassette to listen in the car. You don't have to lift the needle past the song you don't like. You don't have to worry about scratches, warped records or somebody borrowing your album and never bringing it back.

We did gain something from owning those records. An album collection was personal. The covers were artwork. The liner notes were read. The records sitting on the shelf told visitors something about you. Streaming has lost that. But economically, there is no comparison.

A teenager in 1978 might save up from a part-time job to buy one or two albums. Today, for considerably less than the inflation-adjusted price of one LP, a listener gets a month's access to more music than the biggest record store in America could possibly have stocked back in the day.

We spend plenty of time complaining about what things cost now, and often with good reason. Housing, groceries, vehicles, insurance and medical care can make today's paycheck disappear frighteningly fast. But not everything has gotten worse.

Capitalism, competition and technology often do exactly what they are supposed to do: take something once scarce and expensive and make it abundant and affordable.

I admit I miss the sound of a needle on vinyl. But having nearly the whole history of recorded music sitting in my pocket for $12.99 a month? I'll make the swap.

A pretty good reminder of just how much American ingenuity has put at our fingertips. ###

Garnett is fortunate to have 3 beautiful lakes. The once awesome viewing spots from the teed stools on the West side of the north lake are gone. Now you only get to see overgrown trees and vegetation. Not the lake. Come on Garnett, we can do better than that.

I'd like to thank the lady who helped me to get to the variety store that's on Maple Street, just north of the drive-through restaurant. I want to thank her for stopping to help me get into that particular store. Because we've seen so many negative comments in the Phone Forum, I thought this might be a build up for a lot of the people out there. Thank you.

To the person on Dr. Fauci last week. Have you really felt good since you got the initial shots and boosters? Honest. Have you seen the multitude of deaths caught on the film of athletes dropping dead of heart attacks? Do you know of the people who have suffered myocarditis, heart attacks, strokes, blood clots, turbo cancers, rapid onset Alzheimer's? Fertility problems and miscarriages, people who tried to tell about ivermectin and hydroxychloroquine were labeled kooks and disappeared. Silenced. If you went to the hospital, you were given remdesivir, a failed drug that destroyed the kidney, and you drowned in your own fluids. So they changed the name of that drug to the veklury. The inventor of MRNA begged people not to take it, and was stripped of his license and labeled a kook. Find real America's voice, Wake up America. Watch who your fake news is sponsored by. Is it Pfizer? Thank you.

Trump's recent caustic comments regarding the problems affecting the aircraft carrier USS Lincoln are just another of his absurd statements. By the end of his term, he will sound like a blithering idiot.

Don't we have a city ordinance against salvage yards inside the city limits? There has been numerous complaints about the salvage yard at 4th Street and the highway. Don't try to tell me it is not a salvage yard. Junk lawn mower, cars, trucks, campers, and a large boat, truck filled with salvage iron, has been there for at least 10 years. They work on vehicles outside with an entrance from the side of the highway, because the place is so full of salvage they can't get inside the building for repairs. Seems like nobody in the city and county commissioners care about the way it makes the city look. If you like it the way it makes this town look, call the Phone Forum and brag about it. But if you don't like the way it looks, complains in writing to the city commissioner, county commissioners, the Kansas Department of Transportation in Topeka. Complain, complain, complain over and over again. Nothing will be done unless a lot of complaints from a lot of people are received in writing to the appropriate people in charge. Don't stop complaining until that mess is cleaned up.

Got to keep working to celebrate Welfare Reform

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

JONATHAN BAIN - FOUNDATION/GOV'T ACCOUNTABILITY

limit, and required states to show that a real share of their caseload was working, training, or looking for a job, with penalties attached if they came up short.

It worked. Cash welfare caseloads fell by an estimated 59% between the mid-1990s and the early 2000s. Roughly 2.4 million people moved from welfare to work between 1996 and 2000, accounting for 18% of all employment growth in the country. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's own model found that the shift added 1.6 percentage points to real GDP. Millions of families traded government checks for a paycheck they earned.

That's the celebration side of this 30th anniversary. The other side is the hard lessons welfare reform advocates have had to learn since its implementation.

A work requirement is only as strong as its enforcement, and wherever the 1996 law left gaps open for interpretation, states and federal agencies found the cracks, moved in, and their erosion over time created chasms.

It started with the administration that signed the bill. In its final days, President Clinton's Agriculture Department gave states a way to waive work requirements for able-bodied adults in areas with plenty of jobs. Congress had written that waiver for communities where work was genuinely scarce. States gerrymandered the maps to exempt as many people as they could.

In TANF, states exploit the Caseload Reduction Credit. A state can hit its federal work participation goal just by kicking people off the program or letting them leave, which makes the percentage of remaining workers look better even if the people who left never found jobs. They can make that goal even easier by counting extra money the state already spends on other programs and benefits for low-income people, which gives them bonus points that lower the percentage they have to reach. Thanks to this credit loophole, 38 states effectively have

More bullets please: A foreseeable and dire munitions crisis

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

and International Studies estimated that, out of an arsenal of 2,330 Patriot interceptors before the Iran war, we had roughly 800 remaining. We were down to roughly 250 THAAD interceptors from 450 at the start of the war.

On top of this, news organizations are reporting that we are almost out of ATACMS — a ground-launched precision-strike missile — and Precision Strike Missiles, the newer, longer-range successor to ATACMS.

This isn't comforting at a time when a war with China could be in the offing. Even before Operation Enduring Freedom, a war game involving an conflict in the Taiwan Strait conducted by CSIS had the U.S. running out of key munitions in days or weeks.

What happened? This is a crisis a long time in the making. As defense analyst Mackenzie Eaglen of the American Enterprise Institute has warned for years, skimping on the acquisition of munitions was an easy way to meet constrained Pentagon budgets, and we relied on optimistic scenarios about potential ways to justify chronically insufficient production.

For some understandable reasons, we also emphasized sophisticated missiles and interceptors over "good enough" systems. This led to Iran, for instance, forcing us to use highly expensive, difficult-to-replace interceptors against cheap, bulk threats from drones. All this means that we've expended ordnance that it will take us years to build again. According to media reports, we've used about half our supply of Tomahawk cruise missiles, when we've been manufacturing fewer than 100 a year.

We need to put missile production on a wartime footing, and leverage hungry new defense firms to produce cheaper precision missiles and interceptors at scale. In World War II terms, it's the difference between the easy-to-maintain and mass-produced Sherman tank and the exquisite and powerful, but ultimately impractical Tiger. Whatever advantages the Tiger had in armor and punch, you'd still rather be the U.S. with 50,000 Shermans than the Germans with 1,500 Tigers.

The Trump administration has been

During the 1979-1980 hostage crisis, a defiant Iran starkly demonstrated the limits of American power. Forty-five years later, it is doing the same thing, although in vastly different circumstances. Back then, when the post-Vietnam military was at a low ebb, we didn't strike Iran, and a long-shot rescue operation ended in abject failure.

Now, with the U.S. military at its most proficient and professional in history, we have inflicted punishing blows against the regime but still haven't been able to impose our will, in part because we are running low on the munitions necessary to prosecute the war. Not only is this embarrassing, it is dangerous.

If Operation Midnight Hammer — last year's lightning strike against Iranian nuclear facilities — demonstrated the prowess of the U.S. military and sent a useful deterrent message to our enemies, the Iran war is now doing the opposite. We're running low on missiles and interceptors in a months-long conflict with a beleaguered second-rate power. What would happen in a drawn-out war with a major adversary?

President Trump has posted a thunderous denunciation of leaks to the media about our depleted weapons stocks, and the leaks are indeed irresponsible. But this problem is a matter of public record and has been tracked by outside organizations. At the end of July, the Center for Strategic

Beautiful day but slim finds

Unbelievable!! I woke up this morning and it was 68 degrees outside.

Is it a sign of an early winter? Yesterday was my first day back at my dig site this month. It was a beautiful day, but the finds were very slim. I'm continuing my excavations along the foundation of an old stone house. Just being able to be out in the fresh air was great. On one of my breaks, I walked over and checked out the old honey bee tree. To my surprise, there are no bees this year. What's happening to all the bees? Too many insecticides?

The photos are some of most recent finds:

#1 - A beautiful swirled marble from the early 1900's.

#2 - Are these two rusted coins, tokens or iron slugs?

#3 - These are two old corker bottle tops. As you

THAT WAS THEN

Historical gleanings from past local newspapers.

1886 - 140 years ago

August 20 - A party in the south part of town by the name of Rutledge, in company with his wife, was arrested Saturday, charged with keeping a house of ill repute. They plead guilty and were fined $10 and costs.

August 20 - Go to the fair next week and see what Anderson County can produce with a midsummer drouth of six weeks.

August 20 - Peter Plain, of the German House, was brought before Judge Statler, Tuesday, charged with violating the prohibitory law. The case was discharged as the witness for the prosecution failed to materialize.

1896 - 130 years ago

August 21 - Mahan and Hiatt is the name of a new firm of cigar makers and have opened a factory in the Ayres building on the north side. This firm is composed of two energetic young men in business life and should receive encouragement by the cigar pullers.

August 21 - On Saturday morning a fire broke out in Mrs. Hunt's residence property south of the St. James hotel and almost completely destroyed the building before it could be checked. The place was occupied by Mrs. Kildoo and the fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue.

August 21 - The dwelling house and barn of Sol Kelley, residing one mile and a half southeast of Mont Ida, burned about 9 p.m. Sunday last, fire starting from a lamp explosion. They saved very little of their effects either in house or stable.

afternoon in the Carey building on Oak street. Everyone cordially invited.

August 24 - Quite a number of men went out this morning to the Kent farm to seine the creek there. They were accompanied by the deputy fish commissioner, Max Perle, and the intention is to take out the carp and other undesirable fish.

1916 - 110 years ago

August 24 - The Home Telephone Company this week installed in the Welsh drug store and the Panama Hotel new long-distance booths of the latest designs. They have electric fans that start at the lifting of the receiver, have special ventilation systems, and are the very latest thing in the way of a telephone booth. Manager Wadman says that the Home long-distance service will be bettered in every way, and they will make it so convenient that "long distance" will be just as easy as talking at home.

August 24 - There is something wrong with our prohibitory laws when men and boys can fill up and make the night hideous with their brawls. No names this time.

1926 - 100 years ago

August 26 - The "Air Circus" which was put on last Sunday was a great success from an aeroplane standpoint. There was a large crowd of people on hand to see the circus. Several aeroplanes did their stunts all day.

August 22 - The partially erected steel Quonset hut, purchased by the Anderson County Fair Association for a permanent exhibit building, is one of the casualties of last week's tornado. A nearby livestock shed suffered the same fate at the quirk of the wind that knocked the concrete supports from under it. Wreckage will be cleared away to get the city fairgrounds in shape to hold the Anderson County Fair next week.

1966 - 60 years ago

August 25 - Garnett city police were summoned to the Little Brown Jug tavern on Garnett's south side about 9 p.m. Monday, August 22, to investigate an alleged altercation between three local youth and four members of the carnival crews here for the fair. When Bob Walt of the Garnett police force arrived, there were a few broken beer bottles scattered around but everything was quiet and no one signed a complaint.

1976 - 50 years ago

August 26 - Depicting the dangerous water shortage situation in Garnett as a "house of cards," City Manager Mike McDowell told the Garnett City Commission last night that the city should be thinking in terms of immediately activating planning for a reservoir which the city has needed for some 20 years.

no work requirement for TANF — all but shutting down the vision Democrats and Republicans had for welfare in 1996.

Instead of addressing the manipulation, Washington kept widening the gaps for states to exploit.

And they weren't even subtle about it. President Barack Obama considered just letting states waive the cash welfare work requirement altogether, instead of what they were doing: abusing loopholes.

During the pandemic, President Joe Biden opened the floodgates to record numbers of ineligible enrollees by suspending food stamp work requirements and freezing Medicaid eligibility checks for several years — even when the market recovered.

The radical shift from "welfare shouldn't be a way of life" to "welfare for all" in just three decades is alarming and made the One Big Beautiful Bill all the more critical — and historic.

President Donald Trump and congressional Republicans learned from all the loopholes and pivots, and guidance that eroded life-changing welfare reform and shut it down.

The One Big Beautiful Bill scales back the waivers and exemptions, closes loopholes, extends work requirements to Medicaid for the first time at the federal level, locks in food stamp spending levels, ends the provider-tax scheme states used to pull down extra Medicaid dollars, and makes states pay a share when their error rates run high. It leaves far less to interpretation than the 1996 law did.

This new law has proven once more that reform is a process, not just a moment.

Karters of America Racing Triad (KART)/MARRS Lake Garnett Enduro, held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 15-16. The official schedule included roughly 40 classes over the two days. The next series race will be Sept. 25-27 — KART National Championships, Hallett Motor Racing Circuit, Hallett, Oklahoma.

Black & McDonald crew helps right St. John's bell

GREELEY — Employees of Black & McDonald Electrical Contracting of Kansas City, Mo., offered up their services to assist St. John the Baptist Catholic Church in Greeley, Kan., this week by dislodging one of its two church bells which had become stuck upside down for decades.

A second bell hangs directly above the inverted bell which has been ringing solo before Mass.

The height of the bell tower and the uncertain conditions of an aging roof made access to the bells nearly impossible. While working at a sub-station near Hwy. 169 and Scipio Road, a parishioner passing by noticed their large bucket truck and decided to ask if Black & McDonald would be willing to investigate dislodging the lower bell.

"That's just the kind of thing we like to do, helping people," Todd Newell, superintendent at Black & McDonald said. The bucket truck easily reached the bell tower and crew members were able to release the bell with a tool normally used to work electric lines. The bell rang joyously for the first time in decades as it swung to life with renewed freedom.

"I am grateful for these kind men who went out of their way to help us. It was definitely a joyful moment for all of us present to hear that bell ring! I am looking forward to hearing it ring along with its bigger brother before 8am Mass on Sunday mornings."

Fr. Thomas Maddock, Pastor of St. John the Baptist said.

Even with much less wiggle room, states are already suing to block the law and testing workarounds to game the system instead of trying to reduce fraud and corruption in their welfare systems.

Thirty years ago, both parties agreed that welfare should be a bridge back to work. Thirty years later, President Trump and Republicans in Congress are rebuilding that bridge, learning from the tough lessons, and protecting the safety net for the truly needy by closing the loopholes that have eroded it for decades.

Swing bed care helped Scott stand tall

After surgery to save the upper part of his leg, Scott needed ongoing care to help his wound heal, along with intensive physical therapy to rebuild strength and mobility.

Scott transitioned to a swing bed program at his hometown hospital, where he could recover close to family and friends who mean the most to him.

A patient can transition into swing bed care at Allen County Regional Hospital in Iola or Anderson County Hospital in Garnett if they have a qualifying hospital stay and continue to require daily skilled-level care.

talking the right game, and there have been encouraging moves. It has signed agreements to acquire 10,000 cruise missiles over three years at a cost of a few hundred thousand dollars each, far less than a Tomahawk at more than $2 million.

Wars always bring surprises. It should have been a shock to no one, though, that contemporary military conflict is largely missile warfare, or that we'd have trouble sustaining prolonged hostilities given that we started out with inadequate stocks. The American way of warfare is often to mess it up before adjusting and getting it right. The course correction here should be considered the most urgent priority of U.S. national security.
